Re: The Pistachio Voluntary Recall

FDA has announced a voluntary recall, initiated by Kraft Foods and Georgia Nut Company for products containing shelled pistachios. This recall is linked to a possible Salmonella contamination found in shelled pistachios. This re-call is expanding also to additional pistachio products. La Tourangelle Inc. purchases its pistachios from Meridian Nut Growers located in California.

MNG are not involved in the current recall.

MNG has been actively monitoring, sampling and testing for all microbial contaminations in their pistachio products.

MNG declares that the products shipped are safe for human consumption. The product is tested for Salmonella prior to shipment. This Food Safe Guarantee ensures that absolutely no Salmonella positive product will ship to the consumer market.
